

Trump Lands in Beijing for First U.S. Presidential Visit to China in Nine Years

President Donald Trump touched down in Beijing on Wednesday evening for a two-day summit with Chinese President Xi Jinping, the first visit to China by an American president in nearly nine years and one of the most consequential diplomatic encounters in recent memory. Trump descended the steps of Air Force One to a red-carpet welcome, with 300 Chinese children in blue-and-white uniforms waving American and Chinese flags, while Chinese Vice President Han Zheng led the receiving delegation on Xi's behalf.

The delegation that flew with Trump underscored the high commercial stakes. Tesla's Elon Musk and Nvidia's Jensen Huang boarded the presidential plane for the trip, joining Apple's Tim Cook and other executives in a business-heavy entourage. Secretary of State Marco Rubio and Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth also made the journey — Rubio despite being under Chinese sanctions, a diplomatic wrinkle that Beijing appeared to quietly manage by altering the Chinese transliteration of his name before his arrival.

The two leaders are set to begin formal talks on Thursday, with an agenda spanning trade, Taiwan, artificial intelligence and the ongoing U.S. war with Iran. On trade, the sides are expected to seek an extension of the one-year tariff truce Trump and Xi reached at their last meeting in South Korea in October. On Iran, Trump has said he wants a "long talk" with Xi about persuading Tehran to return to the negotiating table and reopen the Strait of Hormuz — a choke point whose disruption has pushed the U.S. war's cost to $29 billion and sent global energy prices surging. Yet Trump also told reporters he did not believe Washington needed China's help on Iran, even as experts noted both powers share an interest in restored shipping flows through the Gulf.

Beijing views the summit as a chance to lock in a more stable long-term relationship, though analysts at the Council on Foreign Relations cautioned that China may seek to use the meetings to "manage" Washington rather than make structural concessions. Further summits are expected later this year at APEC in Shenzhen and the G20 in Miami.

Iran War Aftermath: Israel Sends Iron Dome to UAE, Casualties Mount in Lebanon

The U.S. ambassador to the UAE confirmed that Israel sent Iron Dome anti-missile batteries and personnel to the country during the ongoing Iran war. Separately, at least 13 people were killed in Lebanon in Israeli strikes on Jibsheit, Kfar Dounine, and Nabatieh, with victims including a child, a woman, and a Lebanese army member.

Israel's Knesset passed a measure 93-0 targeting those responsible for the deadliest attack in Israel's history. Preliminary figures put total casualties from the wider conflict at 3,468 dead in Iran, 2,702 dead in Lebanon, and 28 killed in Gulf states. Kuwait also accused Iran of a failed attack on an island where China is building a port.

EU Imposes Sanctions on Israeli West Bank Settlers; Ultra-Orthodox Party Threatens to Dissolve Knesset

The European Union unanimously agreed to impose sanctions on Israeli settlers in the occupied West Bank, a decision sparked by growing outrage over the devastation in Gaza. The move reflects a sharp diplomatic shift in Europe's posture toward Israel. Separately, an ultra-Orthodox Jewish party in Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu's coalition called for parliament to be dissolved, threatening to bring down the government over the country's military draft. The destabilizing political development adds pressure on Netanyahu as Israel navigates multiple simultaneous conflicts.

Strait of Hormuz Crisis: Saudi Aramco Warns of 'Catastrophic Consequences'

Saudi Aramco CEO Amin Nasser warned that the global energy market has lost approximately 1 billion barrels of oil supply due to the Iran war's disruption of shipping through the Strait of Hormuz. Nasser cautioned of "catastrophic consequences unless the critical waterway reopens.

The U.S. Department of Energy now says oil prices will likely remain above $100 barrel in coming weeks. Gasoline prices have jumped about $1.50 per gallon since the U.S. launched its war with Iran, and rising fuel prices are a key driver of the 3.8% annual CPI reading reported for April.

FDA Chief Marty Makary Resigns After 13-Month Tenure Marked by Turmoil

Marty Makary is resigning as President Trump's FDA commissioner after a 13-month tenure characterized by mass layoffs, leadership clashes, staff turmoil, and complaints from pharmaceutical executives and Trump allies alike. Trump confirmed the departure, saying Makary was "a great doctor" who "will do well."

Kyle Diamantas, who previously served as the top food official at the FDA, is expected to take over as commissioner, according to a Bloomberg report. The departure adds to instability at the top of major federal health agencies.

April CPI Hits 3.8%, Highest in Nearly Three Years, as Iran War Fuels Energy Prices

Rising gasoline prices pushed U.S. inflation to its highest level in nearly three years in April. Consumer prices were up 3.8% from a year ago, topping the 3.7% consensus estimate. Annual core CPI of 2.8% also exceeded Wall Street's 2.7% forecast.

The 2.1% monthly rise in electricity prices and a 0.5% gain in monthly food prices were both upward surprises. According to CME FedWatch, markets are now pricing in a nearly 30% chance of a Fed rate hike by December 2026. The inflation reading weighed on stocks, particularly tech and chip shares.

Redistricting Battles Intensify: South Carolina Defies Trump, Missouri Court Upholds New Map

President Trump's push to reshape U.S. House districts is producing mixed outcomes. South Carolina senators defied his redistricting push, expressing concerns it could backfire and result in Democratic gains, while Missouri's top court upheld a new map backed by Trump that could benefit Republicans in the midterm elections.

The national redistricting battle has intensified in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision weakening the federal Voting Rights Act. Republicans in Louisiana, Tennessee, and Alabama are now pushing for new districts, while Alabama is set to hold a special primary election after the Supreme Court cleared the way for the state to use a previously blocked map.

Vietnam Fatherland Front Opens 11th National Congress With To Lam Presiding

The 11th National Congress of the Vietnam Fatherland Front (VFF) for the 2026-2031 term officially opened in Hanoi on May 12, with Party General Secretary and State President To Lam in attendance. The VFF congress is a key political event as Vietnam's new government — led by Prime Minister Le Minh Hung — settles into its mandate, with To Lam pledging to better harness the "strength of great national unity."

The government has been implementing sweeping administrative reforms, including eliminating all 13 general departments, cutting over 500 department-level units, and reducing 145,000 civil service positions to streamline governance and cut costs by approximately VND 39 trillion ($1.53 billion) per year.

Vietnam's Agro-Forestry-Fishery Exports Hit $23 Billion in First Four Months of 2026

Vietnam's export turnover of agro-forestry-fishery products reached an estimated $23 billion in the first four months of 2026, up 5.4% year-on-year, according to the Ministry of Agriculture and Environment. The strong showing reflects continued global demand for Vietnamese agricultural and seafood products. Moody's in early May upgraded Vietnam's sovereign credit outlook from "stable" to "positive" while affirming its Ba2 rating, citing the country's robust economic trajectory. The upgrade could attract around $1.7 billion in passive capital alongside $5-8 billion from active global funds. Vietnam's agro-fishery sector is seen as a key pillar of the country's export-led growth ambition.

U.S.-Vietnam Trade Tensions: Section 301 Hearings Underway as $123.5B Trade Gap Draws Scrutiny

Washington and Hanoi are in a dense stretch of trade diplomacy that analysts say will test whether one of the Indo-Pacific's most important bilateral economic partnerships can sustain its momentum. U.S. Section 301 hearings on industrial capacity, forced labor discussions, and bilateral consultations are all taking place in this period.

Vietnam ran a $123.5 billion trade surplus with the United States last year — the fourth-largest imbalance after China, the EU, and Mexico — drawing increasing scrutiny in Washington. Analysts warn that overly punitive U.S. trade measures could push Hanoi toward alternative economic alignments, weakening U.S. influence in a competitive Indo-Pacific at a time when Vietnam is benefiting from supply chain diversification away from China.

Domestic Airfares Rise 15-20% as Middle East Conflict Drives Up Fuel Costs

Domestic airfares in Vietnam have risen by 15-20% on average as a fuel supply crunch linked to the conflict in the Middle East drives up costs, according to Airports Corporation of Vietnam (ACV) in its 2025 annual report. The Iran war and Strait of Hormuz disruptions are affecting aviation costs across Southeast Asia.

Vietnam's hantavirus preparedness is also in the spotlight: the Ministry of Health confirmed on May 11 that the National Institute of Hygiene and Epidemiology has full capacity to detect hantavirus, and that no human cases

Google Unveils Android 17 and Surprise 'Googlebook' Laptop Platform at The Android Show

Google's Android Show 2026 (I/O Edition) on May 12 delivered major announcements including Android 17, Gemini Intelligence integration, and a surprise new computing platform called the Googlebook. The Googlebook merges the best of Android and ChromeOS into a new laptop-focused platform with Gemini AI at its core, representing Google's re-entry into the laptop hardware space.

Google CEO Sundar Pichai said Android is evolving from an operating system to an "intelligent system." The event previewed new AI-powered Android Auto features compatible with BMW, Lucid, and Mini Cooper vehicles, among others. A full Google I/O developer conference follows on May 19.

Google Thwarts AI-Powered 'Mass Exploitation' Cyberattack; Hackers Used AI to Develop Zero-Day Exploit

Google said it likely thwarted an effort by an unnamed criminal threat actor to use AI for a "mass exploitation event" targeting software vulnerabilities. Google stated it does not believe its own Gemini model was used in the attack.

The findings highlight how hackers are exploiting AI tools like OpenClaw to find and weaponize software flaws at unprecedented scale. In a related development, Anthropic in April delayed rollout of its Mythos model citing fears that criminals could use it to prey on decades-old software vulnerabilities — concerns that prompted White House meetings with tech leaders.

Wall Street Pulls Back: Hot CPI, $100+ Oil Drag Tech and Chip Stocks

U.S. stocks fell Tuesday as April's hotter-than-expected CPI report (3.8% YoY) and crude oil climbing above $100 a barrel sent investors into risk-off mode. The S&P 500 slipped 0.16% to close at 7,400.96, the Nasdaq dropped 0.71% to 26,088.20, while the defensive-driven Dow eked out a 0.11% gain to 49,760.56.

Chip stocks were hit hardest: Qualcomm plummeted 13% in its worst session since 2020, Intel dropped 8%, and the iShares Semiconductor ETF sank 5%. The tech sector fell 1.5%. Energy stocks, however, rallied sharply — Exxon and Phillips 66 gained 3.5% and 2.2% respectively as WTI crude settled at $102.18 a barrel.

Fed rate hike odds for December now sit near 30% following the inflation data. S&P 500 futures were up slightly early Wednesday, suggesting a mild bounce.

Russia Kills 8 in Dnipropetrovsk; Ukraine Strikes Gas Facilities 1,500 km Inside Russia

Russian attacks on Ukraine's Dnipropetrovsk region killed eight civilians and injured 11 others on Wednesday. President Zelensky confirmed that two elderly people were killed in a Russian drone strike on a residential building in Kryvyi Rih, while their nine-month-old granddaughter suffered severe injuries.

In retaliation, Ukraine struck gas facilities in Russia's Orenburg region — more than 1,500 kilometers from Ukraine's border — one of its longest-range strikes of the war. Zelensky said, "Ukraine has said that we will act symmetrically in response to Russia." Russia claimed nine Ukrainian drones were repelled over the region. Separately, Ukraine's air force warned that Russian strategic aviation is being redeployed to distant airfields, possibly signaling preparation for new mass strikes.

Kremlin Claims Peace 'Is Approaching'; Zelensky Warns Russia Has No Intention of Ending War

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said that progress in talks with the U.S. and Ukraine means the conflict's end is "indeed approaching," while cautioning it was too early to provide specifics. Putin tested a new nuclear-capable intercontinental missile, which he claimed was the "most powerful" in the world and capable of penetrating all existing anti-missile defense systems — claims analysts say are likely exaggerated. Zelensky, however, sharply disagreed: "Russia has no intention of ending this war. And we are, unfortunately, preparing for new attacks." Trump, leaving for China, said he thinks the Ukraine war's end "is getting very close." The ISW think tank found that Russia's rate of territorial advance has slowed dramatically — from 9.76 sq km/day in early 2025 to 2.9 sq km/day in early 2026, and that Ukraine may have actually recaptured more territory than it lost in April.

Sweden Detains Two for Helping Russia Procure Advanced Sanctioned Products; EU Airport Ceasefire Proposed

Swedish authorities detained two suspects on suspicion of violating international sanctions by helping Russia procure "advanced products," the Swedish Security Service announced on May 11. The arrests underscore ongoing Western efforts to enforce sanctions and cut off Russia's access to dual-use technology.

Separately, Ukraine's Foreign Minister Andrii Sybaha told Politico that Europe may be able to help broker an agreement for Ukraine and Russia to pause attacks on each other's airports — a limited confidence-building measure that could lay groundwork for broader diplomacy.

Fed Watch: Rate Hike Odds Rise to 30% by December; Powell Faces Inflation Dilemma

April's 3.8% consumer price reading — the hottest in nearly three years — is complicating the Federal Reserve's path forward. Markets are now pricing in a nearly 98% chance the Fed holds rates at its June meeting, but a nearly 30% chance of a rate hike by December 2026.

Capital Economics chief North America economist Stephen Brown warned that pressure on core inflation is "still a bit too strong for comfort" and flagged renewed food inflation as a key concern. A significant transition is also underway at the Fed: Kevin Warsh is expected to take charge later this week and has indicated a preference for different inflation metrics than the current PCE-focused framework.

GameStop's $56B Bid for eBay Rejected; Wendy's Surges on Triam Buyout Report eBay officially rejected a $56 billion unsolicited takeover bid from GameStop, dismissing the proposal as "neither credible nor attractive." eBay Chairman Paul Pressler cited a massive funding gap and the high debt load required for the $125-per-share cash-and-stock deal, expressing full confidence in eBay's current turnaround strategy instead.

In other corporate news, Wendy's shares rallied more than 9% after the Financial Times reported that Nelson Peltz's Triam Fund Management was seeking to raise funds for a bid to take the fast food chain private. Wendy's stock had fallen 45% over the prior year, making it an attractive target.
